TFS awarded being Sweden's best workplaces

TFS Trial Form Support International (TFS) was on November 19th, 2009 awarded "Sweden's best workplaces" by the Swedish business magazine Veckans Affärer.

The comprehensive survey was conducted during second half of 2009 in collaboration with the large American periodical Working Mother that each year lists the 100 Best Companies.

The aim was to list the 100 best working places in Sweden but only 50 companies did pass the tough conditions required to be recognized as a modern company. Out of the 50 companies that passed the requirements, 40 companies were large corporations and 10 companies were small and mid-sized corporations.

"Being a company where the true asset is the human capital then obviously receiving recognition like this is satisfying and strongly motivating for all our employees but especially for our managers having line management responsibility. It's always encouraging when our internal efforts within the human resource area are being noted and published by external reputed surveys" said Mr. Daniel Spasic, Chief Executive Officer at TFS.

112 companies participated in the comprehensive survey done by Veckans Affärer that addressed questions regarding statistics which is normally not supported by the current administrative systems. The companies did receive scores based on 49 different parameters such as; gender distribution among management, applicable recruitment- and working policies, career development opportunities and the salary spread between genders. The companies were also measured by the employment terms offered, parent-friendly meeting policy and gender equality.
